Title Report

Euro got certified for AKC tracking in April on his first try. Because there are so few tracking tests around the team has to be certified by running a true TD track in front of a tracking judge. If the dog passes the certification then you get 4 certificates which last a year. Those certificates have to be sent in with your entry. After checking the AKC website looking for tracking test there was one suitable in Fort Wayne, In. With no other tests after that until at least mid August within a 6 state area, I thought I'd try that one. After the draw we found out that we'd drawn 1st alternate which meant we would have to wait until the judges arrived to see if there was enough room to run an alternate track. We received a call at 9:00 a.m. that said they guaranteed we would run. So, we packed up quickly and drove the 4.5 hours to Fort Wayne. At 7:30 a.m. the next day would be the draw to see who would run which track. Being the alternate I would be the last TD to run. The TDU was also going to be run at this trial too. It turned out that all 5 TDU's would be run before the TD's. That meant that we would be the 10th and last dog of the day. The TD's ran fairly quickly then we caravanned up about 13 miles further to where the TD tracks were laid. But, it turned out that the last 2 tracks were at again another different place further up the road. Finally it was our turn to run. Our first leg started out a little rough but I kept trying to remember all the practices & training lessons we have had. Once we made it through that nail biting first leg the next 4 legs were pretty much easier until we were heading to the fence with the dog barking behind it. He gave one big terrier UMPH & when I told him we were working he went right back to tracking finding the 4th corner & 5th leg with ease. When he got to the final article he just plopped into a down. My first ever tracking test a success with 21 month old Euro!

UKC CH Airecraft's New Chapter CGC Page

Page and I step out of the conformation ring for a few weeks to do a little obedience training at the German Shepard Dog Training Club of Chicago where we also train in agility. We took 3 brush-up class to get ready for the ACK Canine Good Citizen test. On Friday May 29th Page past her CGC test with flying colors!
